Can we ever trust what we view online?

All of the picture news group said, "No!"

Haady explained, "People can jumble words up when reporting back to other people!" They can hear things and then change it. A little bit like Chinese whispers.

George said, "People make 'Deep Fake' video's!" The whole group agreed with George however Miss Fidoe and Mrs Barker had never heard of 'Deep Fake' videos before! I asked George to teach me something new! George explained, "Well it's a video of someone talking or someone saying something and they can use your exact voice and make it look like you are saying something completely different! So Mrs Whitehead could make a video saying, 'Come to our school it's great!' But someone can change it to make her say, 'Don't come to Park Hill because it is horrible!'"

Aisha continued, "Photos online can change your whole life. People can look completely different online to what they look like in real life!" Aiza said, "This is sad because teenagers do this and it's not really them." So they feel like they have to be someone they aren't and they will always be chasing after 'fake looks'.

Miss Fidoe asked, "Can we EVER believe what we see online?" Aiza answered, "Yes sometimes! IF it's live we could believe it!" George argued, "No, because people on live television can still mime!"

news group had watched a video in their picture news lessons this week. It was a video of penguins flying! Many children throughout the school thought it was very realistic until they realised it was an 'April Fools' video made by David Attenborough.

How do we know if something is ever true?

The whole group answered, "We don't!"

George said, "On the internet there are 'Click Bait' scams. So things will pop up and tell you you've won something, like a holiday, but it's a scam!"

Do we trust Google?

Aiza said, "Well Mrs Hannah calls Google thick!"

So in conclusion, we can't trust things online unless we see it with our own eyes!

School Council

Last week the school council asked you all for ideas about how to improve our school or changes that could be made. We are looking for new, exciting and fresh ideas. However, they also need to be realistic! We have plenty of suggestions and these ideas will be discussed during the next school council meeting. Watch this space for changes happening around your school!

All ideas shared will be discussed and contemplated by the council and the teachers!

Make sure your voice is heard!
